

A view of Buttermere Lake

PENTAX K-5 II s, 35.0 mm, f/22.0, 1/20 sec, ISO 80 | smc PENTAX-DA 35mm F2.4 AL | CC-BY-NC-ND-4.0

In May, after the dreadful lockdowns in England, I followed my wife to the Lake District for a few days; on the first day we took a walk around Buttermere Lake.

Before this one we've only been to the Lakes once, during winter, and to a rather different location. The area around this lake is dreamy: forests, with moss covered floor, beautiful views - and as bonus, we had an unexpectedly nice weather.

The sole unfortunate thing with this picture was that my lens got dirty which I hadn't noticed before shooting - those are the spots on the picture.

coordinates: 54.522, -3.253

Created by Peter Molnar <mail@petermolnar.net>, published at 2021-09-22 09:00 UTC+01:00, last modified at 2021-10-31 15:57 UTC , to canonical URL <https://petermolnar.net/photo/a-view-of-buttermere-lake/> , licensed under CC-BY-NC-ND-4.0 .