

Stream of Cascada de Los Colores

PENTAX K-5 II s, 35.0 mm, f/8.0, 1/60 sec, ISO 400 | smc PENTAX-DA 35mm F2.4 AL | CC-BY-NC-ND-4.0

On the Canary Island La Palma, unexpectedly, there is a lot of water. Some of this water ends up in the Cascada de Los Colores, a small waterfall of red, yellow, and green streams. Soon the stream becomes mostly red, stays like that for a while, slowly turns into yellow, as other, clear water connects to it, and in the end, it fades into ordinary water.

Created by Peter Molnar <mail@petermolnar.net>, published at 2018-05-28 10:00 UTC, last modified at 2021-05-11 11:49 UTC , to canonical URL <https://petermolnar.net/photo/stream-of-cascada-de-los-colores/> , licensed under CC-BY-NC-ND-4.0 .